

CHANGING COMMUNITY IN HENDERSON COUNTY

CHANGE LEADERS

Safelight serves survivors throughout their lives, whenever we are needed. We are embedded in our community. We live our mission, creating hope, healing lives and changing community by providing safety.

I am beyond grateful daily to work with the dedicated staff, board and volunteers here at Safelight. Our team's passion is why we continue serving survivors in our community with safe, full-service programs after 40 years and counting!

Thank you to our incredible board members, donors, volunteers, partners, and community leaders. Thank you for believing in what we do. You are all a part of this journey, helping us change over 45,000 people's lives since 1984. Your support has paid off as we grow our programs and services to continue to change our community.

Safelight provides services for anyone who has experienced violence, abuse or exploitation (domestic violence, sexual assault, human trafficking, elder abuse, child abuse, etc.). Other agencies now come to us to tour and replicate programs we have created!

Together, we are breaking barriers! By partnering with us, you change lives and help us build a safer community. We ask that you continue to tell everyone you meet about Safelight, helping link those in need to our services. Come tour and see what we continue to build. Attend our amazing events including the Henderson County Humanitarian Awards in April and Night of Hope in October. Follow, like and share posts on Facebook and Instagram. Come volunteer, eat at our café, and shop at our resale store to support our mission!

I am incredibly grateful to be a part of such an incredible community. Thank you for supporting Safelight!

Finding Safety

Henderson County, North Carolina is a uniquely collaborative community. In 2017, AdventHealth recognized the critical need to partner with Safelight's Child Advocacy Center to fill the gap of fragmented medical services for our most vulnerable population – children exposed to child abuse and neglect.

The risk factors for child maltreatment are multifaceted, including but not limited to, domestic violence, substance use disorder, and untreated mental illness. Safelight's comprehensive continuum of services and onsite partners enables emergent, efficient evaluations for children at risk in our state-of-the-art facility.

Our Child Advocacy Center's advocacy support, forensic interviews, child medical evaluations (including forensic evidence collection), and trauma informed counseling allow us to serve not only children in our immediate area, but also neighboring counties who lack these all-inclusive services.

Philanthropist spotlight: Cheryl Stuller

Cheryl Stuller believes it is always important to do more. By teaching her children to give 100% and by dedicating her time and resources to breaking down barriers, she puts this belief into action. Cheryl is someone who consistently walks the walk, building up all those around her, especially those suffering and underserved. Through her generous volunteering, advocacy and financial support, she has been a proud champion of Safelight for many years and has had a lasting impact on the work that we do in this community.

Cheryl found her passion and focus for many years by volunteering with Safelight. As a volunteer from 2001 to 2014, she ran the front desk hotline, answering calls from individuals in crisis, acted as a co-leader for the men's Domestic Violence Intervention Program and worked closely with the Family Advocacy Center as a volunteer court advocate. During her time attending court, she saw a need for change. Cheryl states, "we were experiencing a high rate of dismissals due to victims not being able to attend court after multiple continuances. Coming to court multiple times affects jobs which affects income, which affects quality of life for victims and their families. This also meant perpetrators of domestic violence did not have an opportunity for education or consequences."

Cheryl worked tirelessly with the court system and former Judge Emily Cowan to push for a Prayer for Judgement (PJC) for Henderson County. They were successful. Now an offender can plead guilty and if they attend Safelight's Domestic Violence Intervention Program for 26 weeks, participate, and show benefit, their charges can be dropped. This change decreases the number of times victims have to come to court, creates a pathway for education and provides the court with a guilty plea in case an offender does not complete the required classes. It is still used today!

It is clear that Cheryl's gifts are what she constantly gives to others, an endless supply of time, talent, and treasure, while never expecting anything in return. As a co-owner of Stuller Power Solutions with her husband Brian since 2000, it is clear her passion keeps this business so connected to the community. Cheryl, as well as Stuller Power Solutions, is a valued partner to Safelight and we look forward to many more years working together within this community.

In Loving Memory More than Volunteering: Eleanor Sloan

Through all of the changes, transitions, mergers, and building moves within Safelight's history, one thing stayed the same: Eleanor Sloan. As a volunteer from 1989-2023, Eleanor saw firsthand the expansion of this organization and the profound growth of the community around it. As she retired in 2023 after 35 years of service, there was no one more deserving of celebration.

Eleanor's start with Mainstay, now Safelight, was by chance. After she and her husband retired to this area in 1986, they decided to become more involved within the community. At that time a local agency existed on Church Street, which helped pair volunteers with organizations that needed support. Through them she was connected with Mainstay and The Friends of the Library, and she remained devoted to both since. "I had two loves," Eleanor reflects on this, "the Library and Safelight." She poured that love into her work with us, diligently hand-typing acknowledgement letters weekly on her typewriter. She crafted each letter to thank our donors, sponsors, and grantors in personalized ways, always taking extra time to truly express her gratitude. The same typewriter has been used throughout Eleanor's time at Safelight, and once she is done with it, she hopes it will return to us "as a museum piece." She jokes that the moral of this story is "to buy good things from the beginning," but we know that its longevity is also due to her care, maintenance, and love.

Eleanor's memories of Safelight were primarily focused on the people: the volunteers, staff, and shelter residents. When talking about Safelight's history, she took great care to remember individuals by full name, and to highlight the friendly, close relationships that she formed over the years. This closeness extended to the Safelight clients as well. She remembered a time early on when she and her husband were invited to Thanksgiving dinner at the home of a Safelight client. She says, "we didn't know what to expect, or how to feel, but we took some stuff over for the kids, and we went, and we had Thanksgiving dinner in their house, and it was not a very elaborate one, but they tried hard, and it was good." The next thing she knew, her husband was invited and going to grandpa's day at their children's school.

Eleanor's impact continues. Her stories, jokes, direction, and leadership have been invaluable, and we would not be the same without the work that she has done. "Eleanor was more than a volunteer, she was a leader, a guide, a teacher to us all," Lauren Wilkie, Safelight Executive Director shared. Please join us in remembering her legacy and celebrating her for all that she has done for Safelight and for this community!
